Dimock Proud, a group of homeowners in and around Dimock, PA who have banded together to defend their town's reputation against mainstream media news attacks painting the area as a contaminated wasteland, report that two residents who have been among the most vocal critics against drilling and against Cabot Oil & Gas, Craig and Julie Saunter, have settled their lawsuit with Cabot and have left town.

This is an email MDN received from Dimock Proud on Saturday:

The loud mouths (CRAIG & JULIE SAUTNER) from Carter Road have left town.

Their lawsuit is settled:

- They got their $$$ from Cabot Oil & Gas Corp.;
- The moving van arrived at their house on Thursday, August 30, 2012;
- Their property was purchased by Susquehanna Real Estate 1 Corporation for $167,500.

They spent years destroying the good name of Dimock and quietly slipped out of town. We're hoping the rest of them follow suit. Good riddance.

WE ARE DIMOCK PROUD!(1)

In checking the Dimock Proud website, we also get this:

Craig & Julia Sautner sold their house on Carter Road to Susquehanna Real Estate 1 Corporation. On August 30, 2012, a moving van arrived and the Sautner's left town. Must have gotten their lawsuit $$$ from Cabot Oil & Gas.

Rumor has it that Norma Fiorentino's house is also empty. We haven't been able to confirm that, but it looks promising.(2)
